

Memphis Facial Plastic Surgeon Named President of Top Facial Plastic Surgery Organization

Dr. Langsdon was recently elected president of the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery

Memphis, TN – December XX, 2017

Dr. Phillip Langsdon, Memphis-based facial plastic surgery specialist, was recently named president of the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery (AAFPRS).

A longtime member of the AAFPRS, Dr. Langsdon served as committee chair, national meeting director and was a member of the board of directors. He was also the program chair of the AAFPRS national Fall Meetings from 2015 to 2017; as the program chair, he oversaw a national conference for surgeons to learn and exchange information on new surgical techniques, the latest developments in the field, and innovative treatments. He also directs an AAFPRS-sponsored fellowship program that provides training for young facial plastic surgeons. Until recently, Dr. Langsdon served as the Southern Regional Board member.

About the AAFPRS

The American Academy of Facial Plastic Surgery is dedicated to establishing the highest standards in facial plastic surgery, educating the public, government, and medical professionals on the field of facial plastic surgery, and guiding facial plastic surgeons on how to deliver the highest quality care possible.

Founded in 1964, the AAFPRS is the world's largest specialty organization for facial plastic surgeons. It currently counts 2,500 facial plastic and reconstructive surgeons as its members, many of them board-certified in facial plastic surgery, plastic surgery, and oculoplastic surgery.
